The exports for the week ending same date reach a total of 13,196 bales, of which 13,048 were to Great Britain, none to France, and 150 to rest of the Continent, while the stocks are now 116,386 bales. Compared with the corresponding week of last season, there is a decrease in the exports this week of 2,685 bales, while the stocks to date are 28,102 bales less than they were at this time a year ago. We copy from the Chronicle as follows:

COTTON CROP IN INDIA—According to our latest mail advices from India it would appear that the prospect of enlarged supplies from that quarter are not likely to be realized. Messrs. Piniay, Muir & Co., in their Bombay circular of Ang. 29, states that their best information is that no excess over last year's crop can be looked for, and unless the weather improves, there seems room for a considerable deficiency. The season generally is a late one." So to Messrs. Wattenbach, Heilgers & Co., under date of Calculta, Aug. 35, write that "it is reported that late heavy rains have seriously injured the growing crop."

VISIBLE SUPPLY OF COTTON.—The following table shows the quantity of cotton in sight at this date of each of the two past seasons:
